DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 3, 5, and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 3 and 5 cannot be clearly understood. It is unclear as to what specifically is being claimed. The claims are grammatically confusing. In claim 5, what dependency is being referred to? It seems as though the guide surface would have variable parameters as it rotates. The scope of claim 12 cannot be clearly determined. The claim is apparently a tool which depends from a subcombination switching device from which it depends. The claim is in improper dependent form.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-5, 7-9, 12 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Lauterwald '017.

Art Unit: 3721

Lauterwald '017 discloses the claimed switching device and associated power tool as claimed including a rotatable knob 25, an eccentric element 27 having plural surfaces, as broadly claimed, for translating a rotational displacement of the knob into a translatory displacement of a switching element 31, wherein the shape of the eccentric element differs "significantly" from that of a rod (Note: Figure 5), and is non-circular having the claimed dimensional parameters, as per claims 3, 5, 8 and 9, as best understood.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Art Unit: 3721

Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lauterwald '017.

Lauterwald '017 lacks the guide surface being parabolic in shape. It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to form the element with a parabolic shape since to do so is within the engineering purview of the artisan concerned with providing for a smooth transition between operating modes.

Claims 10 and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lauterwald '017 in view of Frauhammer et al. '359.

Lauterwald '017 lacks the two-legged shift spring. Frauhammer et al. '359 discloses a similar tool comprising an eccentrically mounted shifting element 40 in contact with two-legged "shift spring" 56, 561, 562. In view of the teachings of Frauhammer et al. '359, it would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to provide the device of Lauterwald '017 with the shift spring as claimed in order to dampen transitions from one operating mode to another.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. See the attached PTO-892 for related art.
